Mike Butler joined the firm in 1973 and qualified as a patent attorney in 1977, winning the Gill Prize. He became a partner in 1980. Having lived in Oxfordshire since 1982, he was one of the founders of the Oxford office in 2002 and is based there principally, working for SME's and universities in the region in addition to his other national and international clients. He was appointed senior partner of the firm in 2010 and also spends time in the London office.

Michael works on patents in physics, engineering and computer related fields, and also handles trade mark and design cases. He is a graduate of the University of Cambridge where he studied physics and materials science under a scholarship from Marconi, with whom he had a pre-university placement for a year. He has a Diploma in Intellectual Property Litigation from Birkbeck College, University of London, and is certified to conduct intellectual property litigation in the higher courts. He has been involved in several actions in the courts and is experienced at negotiating settlements in patent, design and trade mark cases.

Professional Experience

Chris Davies joined the firm in 1980 and became a partner in 1987. He has a degree in Physics from Southampton University. He was awarded the Gill prize on qualifying as a patent attorney, for achieving the highest marks in the country. He is a certified patent attorney litigator and can therefore conduct litigation in all the higher courts in the UK. He handles mainly patent work in the physics, engineering, electronics and telecommunications fields, as well as design and industrial copyright work. He handles many contentious matters as well as infringement/validity opinions.

Chris specialises in EPO oppositions and appeals, and typically represents clients in twenty to thirty opposition and appeal hearings each year. This makes him one of the most experienced EPO practitioners in the UK. His success rate in these proceedings is extremely high. In recent years he has successfully represented major clients such as Kimberly-Clark, Medtronic and Du Pont in opposition and appeal proceedings involving some of their high profile and important patents, a number of which have been litigated in parallel in the national courts. The technical fields of such cases include disposable nappies, tissues, health care, paper making, printing and medical products. He has also been heavily involved in a number of major telecommunications cases, including litigation of patents concerning the GPRS standard and concerning mobile email systems. Chris has also given evidence as an expert witness in UK court proceedings on the issue of patent amendment.
